Acknowledgement

Energy Queensland would like to acknowledge and pay respect to the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander ancestors across Queensland where we work and travelled to develop this Reconciliation Action Plan. The foundations laid by these ancestors – our First Nations peoples – gives strength, inspiration and courage to current and future generations, both Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander, towards creating a better Queensland.

We would especially like to acknowledge the Traditional Owners and Custodians who honoured us by spending time sharing their knowledge and wisdom. Their participation in this process ensures that our Plan will be a mechanism to ensure meaningful relationships are built between our businesses and the First Nations communities throughout Queensland.

Artwork

Maurice Mickelo is a professional Aboriginal contemporary artist from the South Burnett area. His passion for art began at a very young age, he now creates and produces unique Aboriginal art in many mediums, including cultural artefacts, alongside his canvas and ceramic pieces. Maurice's art focuses on traditional stories and his connection to his country.

The artwork Maurice created for Energy Queensland is "showing us, people sitting down talking and having a greater understanding each other's cultures and stories and walking together in peace as one."

A message from our Chairman and Chief Transformation Officer

We're very proud to launch Energy Queensland's First Nations Connections Plan, our first formal commitment to furthering relationships and reconciliation between First Nations and Non-First Nations peoples of Queensland.

We continuously strive to put people at the heart of what we do and our approach to developing this Plan was no different. We were determined to ensure our planning was informed by the thoughts of our First Nations and non-First Nations employees and importantly, First Nations peoples of Queensland.

Our team engaged with 11 communities around Queensland and asked what meaningful action looked like and how we could work together.

We learned the importance of restoring and maintaining the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultural Ecosystems. We explored how we can translate Energy Queensland's vision to Energise Queensland Communities into meaningful outcomes for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples. We were reminded of the importance of respect and trust in the relationships we build and maintain.

While our Plan is about reconciliation and has been registered with Reconciliation Australia as an Innovate Reconciliation Action Plan, it is also inherently about connection: strengthening relationships and working together to create positive futures. In recognition of this very deliberate intent, we have adopted the name First Nations Connections Plan.

Our intent over the life of this Plan is to focus on initiatives that strengthen the human, physical and spiritual elements of the Cultural Ecosystem. In practise, this means building capability within our business and communities to ensure we can all contribute positively to strengthening connections and implementing the co-designed initiatives outlined within this Plan.

We extend our sincere thanks to the many people who contributed to co-designing our First Nations Connections Plan and invite your continued involvement as we work together to bring it to life.

A message from Reconciliation Australia

Reconciliation Australia is delighted to welcome Energy Queensland to the Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) program by formally endorsing its inaugural Innovate RAP.

As a member of the RAP community, Energy Queensland joins over 1,000 dedicated corporate, government, and not-for-profit organisations that have formally committed to reconciliation through the RAP program since its inception in 2006. RAP organisations across Australia are turning good intentions into positive actions, helping to build higher trust, lower prejudice, and increase pride in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures.

Reconciliation is no one single issue or agenda. Based on international research and benchmarking, Reconciliation Australia defines and measures reconciliation through five critical dimensions: race relations; equality and equity, institutional integrity; unity; and historical acceptance. All sections of the community – governments, civil society, the private sector, and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities – have a role to play to progress these dimensions.

The RAP program provides a framework for organisations to advance reconciliation within their spheres of influence. This Innovate RAP provides Energy Queensland with the key steps to establish its own unique approach to reconciliation. Through implementing an Innovate RAP, Energy Queensland Limited will develop its approach to driving reconciliation through its business activities, services and programs, and develop mutually beneficial relationships with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander stakeholders.

We wish Energy Queensland well as it explores and establishes its own unique approach to reconciliation. We encourage Energy Queensland Limited to embrace this journey with open hearts and minds, to grow from the challenges, and to build on its successes. As the Council for Aboriginal Reconciliation reminded the nation in its final report:

Reconciliation is hard work—it's a long, winding and corrugated road, not a broad, paved highway. Determination and effort at all levels of government and in all sections of the community will be essential to make reconciliation a reality.

On behalf of Reconciliation Australia, I commend Energy Queensland on its first RAP, and look forward to following its ongoing reconciliation journey.

Our vision for reconciliation

Our vision for reconciliation is an Australia with unity between First Nations peoples and other Australians. We aspire to a culture of trust and mutual respect, built upon equity and equality, strong relationships, integrity and shared understanding and acceptance of history.

Our vision for reconciliation forms part of our broader vision for connection: to build respectful, sustainable connections with Traditional Custodians, First Nations peoples and communities by focusing on leading-practice initiatives that are co-designed, empowering and strengthen the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Cultural Ecosystems.

Realising our vision

While this is Energy Queensland's first formal commitment to furthering reconciliation and connection with First Nations peoples and communities, we have actively sought to understand and incorporate leading practice to realise our vision.

At the core of our approach is a commitment to co-design, acknowledging that collaboration and developing a shared understanding of what is valuable is critical to meaningful connection and realising benefits in communities.

We heard and understand the importance of working toward delivering place-based initiatives capable of directly benefiting communities in the ways they identify are most needed. In some communities, we heard how cultural healing can help best position the community and its peoples to prosper.

Our initiatives over the life of the Plan are focused first on building internal capability, systems and processes to establish a foundation to enable us to continue to partner with our communities on place-based initiatives that reap benefits for communities and enhance the cultural ecosystem.

What is our core business?

The Energy Queensland Group is 100% owned by Queenslanders.

As a Government Owned Corporation, we deliver electricity across Queensland through our 'poles and wires' businesses Energex and Ergon Energy Network. These businesses supply safe, reliable, efficient and sustainable energy solutions across Queensland. They provide electricity to millions of Queensland homes and businesses from the Tweed River to the Torres Strait and from Brisbane to Birdsville. Energex and Ergon Energy's network and assets are worth more than $20 billion.

The Energy Queensland Group, formed in June 2016, also includes our retailer, Ergon Energy Retail which sells this electricity to customers throughout regional Queensland. Additionally, a range of innovative products and services are delivered through Yurika and other market brands.

We operate across the state of Queensland with 17 service areas ranging from the Far North Queensland to the Gold Coast. This includes three customer service centres, 127 service depots and offices, three Network Control centres and 33 stand-alone power stations across the state.

The critical role Energy Queensland plays in energising communities provides a unique opportunity to incorporate initiatives within our RAP that directly benefit Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities through energy affordability and sustainability.

Our Vision, Purpose and Values

To help guide and provide meaning to everything we do at Energy Queensland, we have established a unifying Vision, Purpose and set of core Values. Our Vision helps us better understand where our organisation is heading in the future, whereas our Purpose outlines what we do, our core roles. Our Values helps keep us aligned with how we set out to do to achieve our Vision with Purpose.

Our Plan

In May 2018, Energy Queensland commenced its First Nations connections and reconciliation journey. Our Plan lays out a program of transformational change to create strong, relationships with Traditional Custodians, and First Nations Communities across Queensland. The First Nations Connections Plan proudly incorporates our Reconciliation Action Plan.

Energy Queensland's vision is Energising Queensland Communities – we commenced our reconciliation journey to strengthen our connections with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, organisations and communities. Through our Plan, we hope to build and embed respect for the world's longest surviving cultures and communities as part of how we do business.

Program design principles

The First Nations Connections Plan vision is underpinned by three principles which align to the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander operating rhythm which is complex, interrelated and holistic. These principles enabled us to take a strengths-based approach to synergising western and First Nations knowledge and paradigms.

Our co-design process was led by Wulli Wulli and Wakka Wakka man and Energy Queensland Aboriginal leader, Neville Hoehne. Neville used his extensive experience in our business and community, and deep love of his people and culture and shared his professional, cultural and lived experience as an Aboriginal man growing up in Queensland to lead this journey.

Principle 1: Co-Designed

Leader-led, employee-empowered and community involved and collaborated

Principle 2: Leading Practice

Inclusive of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander agency, leadership and culture

Principle 3: Cultural Ecosystem

Strengthen the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultural ecosystems

Respectfully engaging

Our First Nations Connections Plan team, including senior leaders and passionate employees, travelled to meet with Traditional Owners, Elders and community leaders to share Energy Queensland's First Nations Connections Plan vision and collaborate on meaningful place-based initiatives. We recognised that the respectful engagement and active involvement of First Nations peoples, in an environment where a power-base is shared equally, was critical to ensure the design of place-based initiatives which are relevant and able to be realised within the unique context of each community.

Workshops were also run with Senior Leaders and First Nations and non-First Nations employees to explore possibilities within Energy Queensland. The thinking and discussion that arose in these workshops helped shape the initiatives in this Plan.

Preserving culture

Energy Queensland recognises and respects the distinct cultural rights of Aboriginal peoples and Torres Strait Islander peoples as Australia's first people under the Human Rights Act 2019. We are committed to supporting peoples in our workforce and communities to practice and preserve culture as part of this Plan.

Connecting with communities

We identified 11 communities across our operating area in Queensland to engage in co-design. These communities are diverse in geography and reflect urban, regional and remote locations where we have a significant operational footprint and/or community involvement.

We recognise there are many more communities and Traditional Owner groups across the state and remain committed to furthering relationships and connections broadly over the life of this Plan.

The Cultural Ecosystem

Through our engagement, Energy Queensland heard and recognises the importance of the Cultural Ecosystem to the wellbeing of First Nations communities. The Aboriginal Cultural Ecosystem is made up of the human, physical and sacred worlds, recognising the importance of these elements to the wellness and prosperity of First Nations peoples.

Each initiative in the First Nations Connections Plan has been aligned with the cultural ecosystem.

Human World

First Nations Connections Plan human world initiatives will deliver benefits to and positively impact the people, family, ceremony, art and culture.

Physical World

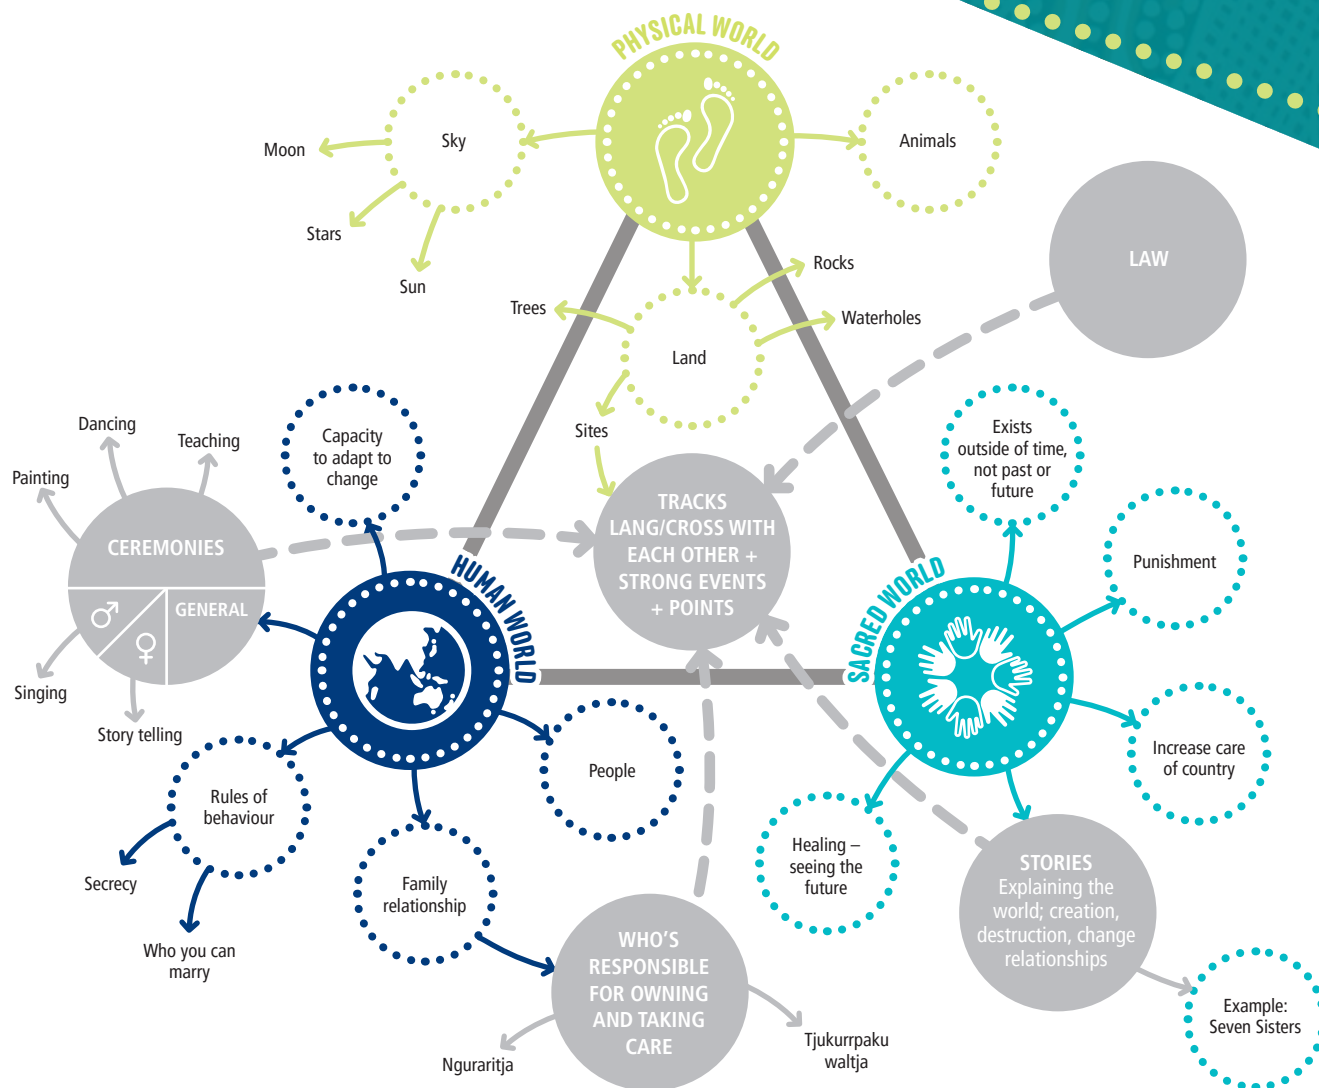

First Nations Connections Plan physical world initiatives will deliver benefits to and positively impact the land, sky, sea and animals.

Sacred World

First Nations Connections Plan sacred world initiatives will deliver benefits to and positively impact the revitalisation of culture, healing, truth telling and lore/law.

Bringing our Plan to life

Energy Queensland's Executive and Senior Leaders are committed to ensuring our First Nations Connections Plan is positioned to achieve our vision. Our leadership team have participated in the co-design project and will continue to have strategic oversight of this Plan.

The Plan will be implemented by the First Nations Connections Plan Business Initiative Leads whose functional responsibilities ensure the commitments in this Plan are embedded across Energy Queensland.

The members of our First Nations Connections Plans Business Initiative Leads Group are:

- EGM Retail (Executive Sponsor)
- First Nations Connections Plan Working Party Lead
- Cultural Heritage Services Manager
- GM Emerging Opportunities and Acceleration

- Manager Careers
- Manager Community Strategy
- GM People Strategy and Culture
- Manager Property Asset Management
- Manager Strategic Sourcing
- Manager Technical Training and Apprentices
- Senior Advisor Culture, Diversity and Inclusion
- Senior Advisor Talent
- Senior Community Strategy Advisor
- Manager Customer Inclusion
- GM Operations – Field Delivery

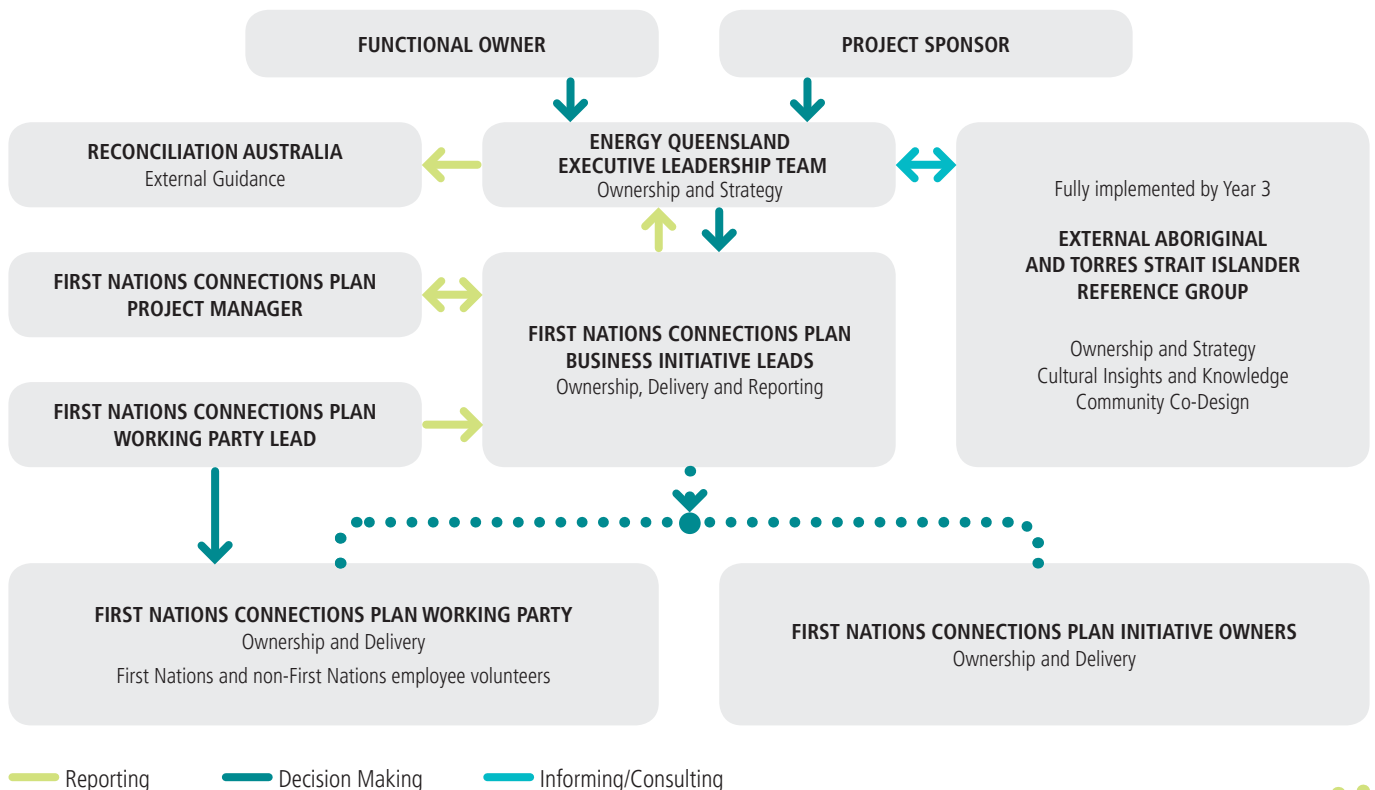

This group includes two First Nations employees.

We endeavour to put people at the heart of what we do. Enabling our passionate First Nations and non-First Nations employee advocates to be involved with implementation as the First Nations Connections Plan Working Party is a critical part of ensuring the plan is brought to life. Our First Nations Connections Plan Working Party will implement a number of initiatives directly related with building strong connections and engaging Energy Queensland employees. The First Nations Connections Plan Working Party is made up of volunteering employees, so members across the organisation will change over time. The group will be represented by their lead on the First Nations Connections Plan Business Initiative Leads group.

We will continue to give First Nations customers and communities a voice as key external reference points, and work toward formally implementing an external reference group in the third year of our Plan.

Governance, tracking progress and reporting

The Energy Queensland Executive Leadership Team will maintain accountability for the delivery of the First Nations Connections Plan. The Plan will be executed by Initiative Owners and supported by an employee working party of First Nations and non-First Nations employees. By the conclusion of the three years, we intend to have an external reference group in place to supplement the current relationships with communities and provide cultural insights and guidance.
